1. Introduction

Dear friends and colleagues,

Welcome to the second newsletter for the ICTM ANZ Regional Committee (RC). We will continue to issue a newsletter every 6 months or so. In between times, the regional committee website (see point 4 below) can act as a notice board for news and events, as well as a discussion board for members.

The purpose of this newsletter is to inform the scholarly community about the activities of the RC, and to encourage members to think of themselves as part of a regional network of peers. All financial ICTM members in Australia and New Zealand are automatically members of the RC. We also encourage you to distribute these notices to others who might have an interest in ethnomusicology and folk music studies. We especially encourage those of you who are supervising graduate students to pass this newsletter on to those students who might benefit from being involved in the ICTM.

Dan Bendrups, Dunedin, 29 August 2010

2. Regional Committee Details 2010-2011

We are happy to announce that the Regional Committee executive is now fully formed. The committee members of for the two-year period 2010-2011 are:

Chair: Dan Bendrups (Otago)
Secretary: Kirsty Gillespie (Griffith)
MSA rep: Jonathan McIntosh (UWA)
NZMS rep: Brian Diettrich (NZSM)
IASPM-ANZ rep: Katelyn Barney (UQ)

We are proud to note that this inaugural committee includes representation from all three main music research bodies in our region, a good mix of West/East Coast and NZ reps, and approaches a balance in gender.

3. 2011 ICTM World Conference – Final Notice

The 2011 world conference of the ICTM is to be held in Newfoundland, Canada. The due date for abstracts is 7 September. Full details as follows:

CONFERENCE THEMES

1. INDIGENOUS MODERNITIES

This theme invites presentations that address the impact of modernity on communities of indigenous music/dance cultures in any country or region of the world. How are contemporary genres of popular culture, theatre or film being used by indigenous artists to express issues that concern them or challenges they currently face? What aspects of traditional song and dance knowledge are being either sustained or lost in the late 20th and early 21st century? What factors are contributing to their cultural maintenance, change, or decline? How is the production of media by indigenous musicians controlled, enabled, and invested with meaning? How are new contexts, new collaborations, and new audiences reshaping traditional and contemporary musical practices? Scholars who submit abstracts for this theme will be aware that the term “indigenous” is often a subject of debate and redefinition. Similarly, “modernity” is a large concept that could include such things as industrial development, media or technological change, globalization, and intercultural exchange as well as deterritorialization and encroachments on indigenous land or lifeways.

2. CROSS-CULTURAL APPROACHES TO THE STUDY OF THE VOICE

ICTM will share one day with the Phenomenon of Singing Symposium, an international event also taking place in St. John's in July 2011 (<http://www.festival500.com/>). Because the two conferences will bring together ethnomusicologists, singers, pedagogues and choral directors, some questions are motivated by our potential common interests. How is “the voice” conceptualized—sonically, socially, physically, metaphysically—in local traditions? For over a decade, the world music movement in Western education has advocated the use of non-Western vocal techniques and timbres: Which techniques/timbres have been successfully adopted/adapted and why? How have the uniform expectations and standards of international choral competitions and festivals affected local concepts about singing? How is “vocal health” defined by different cultural groups? Similarly, what are some culturally-specific discourses of vocal pathology and how are they implicated in vocal pedagogy? How are aspects of identity (gender, class, or ethnicity for instance) mapped on to voice types and timbres?

3. RETHINKING ETHNOMUSICOLOGY THROUGH THE GAZE OF MOVEMENT

For this theme, we borrow the concept of the “gaze” from anthropology and visual art scholarship where the word implies not simply the act of looking, but also assumptions about who looks and from what perspective. To rethink how we might shift ethnomusicology through the gaze of movement then, might imply several different things. It could mean that we start from the perspective of those who “move.” How do they perceive the time and space of music? Or it could mean that we consider the musical implications of looking at movement. By starting from the vocabularies, rhythms, and sensations of movement, how might we think differently about music? By considering how movement is naturalized, exoticized, formalized or contextualized, how is our attention to music already framed by these aspects of the visual and tactile? We encourage a broad definition of movement, one that might focus on formal dance, on gesture, or on the physicality of musical performance, to name only a few possibilities.

4. ATLANTIC ROOTS/ROUTES

For centuries, the Atlantic Ocean served as a major route that linked Europe, Africa, the Americas and the Caribbean. The intense movement of peoples and cultural practices within the framework of asymmetrical power relations, constitutes a legacy that has contributed to shaping the past and present of areas linked by the Atlantic. We invite proposals that address the ways through which political processes and cultural flows have shaped music and dance in the cultural spaces connected through Atlantic routes in the past and present. Taking into account the processes of globalization, how do historical and current circuits of exchange contribute to the reformulation and resignification of expressive practices and to the configuration of new cultural spaces? What are the distinctions between the political and cultural processes involving the northern and southern Atlantic? How can a critical perspective on the Atlantic contribute with new theoretical insights in ethnomusicology and a new understanding of the Atlantic as a crossroads?

5. DIALOGICAL KNOWLEDGE PRODUCTION AND REPRESENTATION: IMPLICATIONS AND ETHICS

In ethnomusicology, dialogic research (that acknowledges how different perspectives shape knowledge and facilitates conversations among doers and knowers) has become increasingly common, gradually changing the way knowledge is produced and represented, and stimulating the involvement of ethnomusicologists as cultural activists. The theoretical, methodological and ethical implications of the dialogical approach have, however, not been sufficiently debated in the discipline. We invite papers that discuss the issues arising from dialogical research for knowledge production and representation, as well as the involvement of ethnomusicologists with the communities they study. What are the implications of the dialogic approach for the ethnomusicological endeavor? How do ethnomusicologists negotiate knowledge production with their interlocutors? How can the perspectives gained through dialogic research best be represented through ethnomusicological discourse and applied to the benefit of the communities studied?

6. ACOUSTIC ECOLOGY

This theme invites discussion of the ways that both human and non-human beings engage the world sonically, in relation to their environment. How do composers and performers model or integrate nonhuman sonic practices into their own music-making? How do sonic features particular to a place or to environmental conditions (e.g., geological, botanical, architectural) help to shape a local sound aesthetic? Likewise, what impact do musical/sonic practices have on natural or humanly-shaped environments? Given our urgent concern with issues of sustainability, how are messages of environmental degradation and efforts to reverse its effects registered in contemporary music-making? How do species like birds, whales or dogs use “song” and what might they teach us about human communication?

7. NEW RESEARCH

Proposals on new research on other relevant topics are also welcome.

PROPOSALS

Proposals are invited in the following categories: Individual Paper, Film/Video, Organized Panel, Forum/Roundtable, and Participatory Workshop. Abstracts of up to 300 words can be submitted online at <http://www.mun.ca/ictm> by 7 September 2010. Forms for mailing or faxing proposals are also available at this site. Proposals will be evaluated anonymously by the international program committee.

LOCATION

North America’s oldest city, St. John’s is the capital of Canada’s newest province (Newfoundland and Labrador).

Located on a centuries-old shipping route, this historic port city developed at the hub of trans-Atlantic trade, becoming home to a variety of vibrant cultural traditions. A rich array of performances are in the planning. You will enjoy local traditions, diverse styles of Native American music and dance, and distinguished performers from across Canada. Our safe and amiable city is also family friendly.

4. Regional Committee Website

As a first step in trying to facilitate networking and communication across our region, the RC has established a website at:

<https://sites.google.com/site/ictmanz/home>

Much of the site is still under construction at this stage, but it will eventually include a discussion board space and an archive for downloadable documents (such as position statements). Please bookmark the address for future reference.

5. Regional Committee Business Meeting and Open Forum, Dunedin, 5 December 2010

The Regional Committee executive will hold their first business meeting from 10.00-12.30 on Sunday 5 December, in Dunedin, at the end of the MSA/NZMS joint conference (2-4 Dec). This meeting will be an opportunity to reflect on the purpose of the RC and to invite open discussion on the nature and future of ethnomusicological research in twenty-first century Australasia.

Call for Submissions – Business Meeting

Any member who wishes to have an item raised in the context of the business meeting should signal this by email to RC chair (Dan Bendrups: dan.bendrups@otago.ac.nz) before 31 Oct 2010.

Call for Submissions – Open Forum

While the open forum will not involve formal paper presentations, we would like to invite those who are interested in attending this meeting to submit short (one page max) position statements concerning issues and challenges - and potential solutions to issues and challenges - for ethnomusicology in our region to the RC chair. These position statements will be circulated to all participants, and each participant will be invited to briefly address the forum about their statement. Members who will not be in attendance at the MSA/NZMS conference are also invited to submit position statements to the RC open forum.

In this way, we hope to generate reflective discussion that might consolidate longer-term objectives for the RC. Should the submissions evolve in such a way as to suggest a particular theme, this may be advanced as a publication project.

Submit your position statements no later than 31 October to: dan.bendrups@otago.ac.nz

If you do not wish to receive any further information from the RC by email, please email dan.bendrups@otago.ac.nz and indicate this so that your name can be taken off the list.
